Host

City of Venice Eastside WRF

In 1991 the City of Venice constructed the first Eastside Water Reclamation Facility. In 2001 it was expanded to 6.0 MGD Bardenpho plant. In 2016 it was expanded to an 8.0 TMADF Type 1 advanced wastewater four stage Bardenpho four stage plant. This domestic wastewater treatment plant consists of preliminary treatment and odor control followed by four—four stage Bardenpho process trains, four clarifiers, three dual media automatic backwash filters and a liquid chlorination system consisting of three contact chambers to provide high level disinfection. Aeration is provided at the contact chambers when surface discharge is necessary. Waste sludge is discharged to four aerated holding tanks and dewatered by two belt filter presses.

Substandard effluent that fails to meet the standards for public access irrigation is diverted to a six-million gallon capacity reject pond for return to the headworks of the plant. Reclaimed water is stored in either above ground storage (two tanks: 7.5 MG and 3.0 MG), or is directed to a 35 MG on-site lined storage pond. All reclaimed water stored in the lined storage pond is filtered and disinfected again, if necessary, before being sent to the reuse system
